

MEDICAL RESEARCH, IS IT POSSIBLE TO RISE AGAIN

Rise of nations have always been accompanied by their rise in all fields of life and similarly the fall of nations always follows their fall in all spheres of life. Any body can partially differ with this statement but perhaps no one can totally deny it. The rise and fall of Muslims is a true example of this phenomenon. The Muslims have ruled the world, during most of their time, in a magnificent way. The time, when they were at the top, they were at the top of every thing i.e, science, education, culture, arts, business and ethics. They were, rather teachers of the world in all these fields. They led the world and made significant discoveries in various scientific areas, including medical sciences. The medical research based on their observations and explanations was considered most reliable and was respected all over the world as a reference.

Unfortunately, the total downfall of muslims in almost every field in the present global scenario also includes their downfall in the field of medical research. Standard of medical research in the Muslim world has deteriorated to the lowest ebb. This may be very difficult to digest by some of us but it is a bitter fact that our research is no more considered reliable and respectable, with exceptions of the muslim scientists working in USA or European Countries.

Let us strive to recapture the glory of our past, to have our due share in the development of this new global society, to find our respectable place in the community of nations and to show our real talent in contributing towards the well being and welfare of the whole mankind. This will only be possible if we, first consider the rebuilding of our nation on the same foundation of principles which led us to the glory, taking our forefathers to the top. That is through following the PATH OF LIFE ordered by Allah Almighty, the only and only real super power of the universe and his last Prophet and messenger, Mohammed (Salallah o Alaihe Wasallam). Without following this route the dream of progress in any field including medical research will remain unrealized.
